Dedication

It has well been said that "The pen is mightier than the sword," and when the pen is used by Spirit-filled leaders to uphold and expound the Word of God, which is "sharper than any two-edged sword," it becomes a powerful instrument to turn countless men and women to the Lord Jesus Christ and to nourish their souls on the Bread of Life. From the mind and heart of this man of God, through a ready pen, have come devotional and inspirational messages to bless his readers, informative and purposeful articles to stir them to prayer and to action, and accurate accounts to verify and corroborate many ventures for God.

For the inspiration of this Godly editor and writer as he has held high the standards and principles of Christ through the pages of the Sunday School Times, for which he was Editor for many years and still serves as Chairman of the Board and Consulting Editor, and for the example of his own disciplined life empowered by the Lord and the lives of his family who serve the Lord around the world, for the pleasure he has imparted in his keen joy and appreciation of the beauties of nature as the handiwork of God, and for the friendship, loyalty, and cooperation through many years of the school of this great spiritual leader, we gratefully and appreciatively dedicate to Dr. Philip E. Howard, Jr. this Esse of 1960.

Educating for Eternity

President James Henderson Cole, B.S., M.S.

The theme of the Esse of 1960, "Educating for Eternity," is not only the motto of the school, but the only purpose for the school; and its leadership, well qualified by training and experience in their academic fields, have vision and goals far beyond the limits of time.

With eternity's values in view, life day by day is fraught with purpose, and every effort, backed with much prayer for wisdom and guidance, is made to bring the life of each student into conformity to the image of the Lord Jesus Christ. Spiritual life is not only strengthened in the daily chapel and vesper services, fall evangelistic services and spring Bible Conference meetings, Sunday afternoon "Barn Vesper Services" and student vesper services, as well as personal devotions; but every activity of the school – in the classroom, on the athletic field, in the dormitory, and each social event is permeated with the presence of Christ; and talking with Him, and talking about His precious truths is the natural result of much time spent with the Word. Surely I Peter 5:10 becomes our prayer in the light of eternity, "But the God of all grace, who hath called us into His eternal glory by Christ Jesus . . . make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you."

In the academic phase of the five-fold program of the Academy – spiritual, scholastic, physical, social, and in the work program – the law of God is firmly held, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge . . ." Prov. 1:7, and the truths of God are not viewed in relation to works of men; but works of men are viewed in their perspective to the eternal verities of God. Ecclesiastes 2:21 shows the vanity and nothingness of learning simply for this life – "For there is a man whose labour is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and in equity; yet to a man that hath not laboured therein shall he leave it for his portion . . ." But when there is vision beyond this life, the promises of God for wisdom and understanding in the daily work of the classroom can be claimed, and victories gained in academic achievement as it is enjoyed and mastered, interpreted and applied for this life and that which is to come.

And although we look forward to the day when ". . . we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." I John 3:2, we realize that our bodies right now are the temples of the Holy Spirit, and should be strong, and clean, and pure for His dwelling place. The athletic and physical education program is designed to develop each individual as they participate in every part of the sports program. As Christians are variously likened in God's Word to athletes such as runners and wrestlers, so every effort is made to strengthen and develop the bodies which God has given to participate in the race of life, with an eye on the goal, "Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith . . ." Heb. 12:2.

As the Lord Jesus "increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man," Luke 2:52, so the social graces are taught at the Academy, that in attitude and conduct in their relationships in life the students enjoy Christian fellowship here, and hold these relationships on the high spiritual plane which honors the Lord.

The standards of the servant of God, "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful." I Cor. 4:2, is held also in the work program where each one is taught to do faithfully and well all that is assigned to him, that in ". . . whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men." Col. 3:23.

This preparation of heart, mind, and hand to love and serve our wonderful Savior, Whose we are and Whom we serve, we have endeavored to show in the following pages of this book which portrays education "for eternity."

For the Glory of God

With a God-given pattern and purpose, Dr. and Mrs. Pierre Wilds DuBose founded in 1934 a Christ-centered, co-educational, interdenominational, college-preparatory high school, and named it Hampden DuBose Academy in honor of the founder's father, Dr. Hampden Coit DuBose, a pioneer missionary to China, whose life is recorded in a book entitled, For the Glory of God. This title signifies also the purpose of the school, that day by day every phase of the work might glorify Him now, and that in the years to come the young people, trained in eternal values by a consecrated faculty and staff, might go out into all parts of the world to glorify Him on the mission field, in the ministry, and in the business and professional world.

Following the injunction of God, repeated four times in Scripture – Habakkuk 2:4, Romans 1:17, Galatians 3:11, and Hebrews 10:38 – "The just shall live by faith," and inspired by the life and works of others who had stepped out on the promises of God and found them true, as George Muller, Hudson Taylor, and particularly Amy Carmichael and her book, Meal in a Barrel, Dr. and Mrs. DuBose carefully followed the pattern of complete trust in Him, making each need known to God alone and not to man. This is true, not only for the school, but for each member of the faculty and staff to whom God has given the same vision, for each one, individually, looks to the Lord for the supply of every need. This life of faith has drawn each member of the personnel of the school close to the Lord – and the thrill of experiencing the abundant provision of God, both spiritual and material, and the joy of seeing Him work by the power of His Holy Spirit in the lives of the young people would not be exchanged by any of those whom He has called into this work.

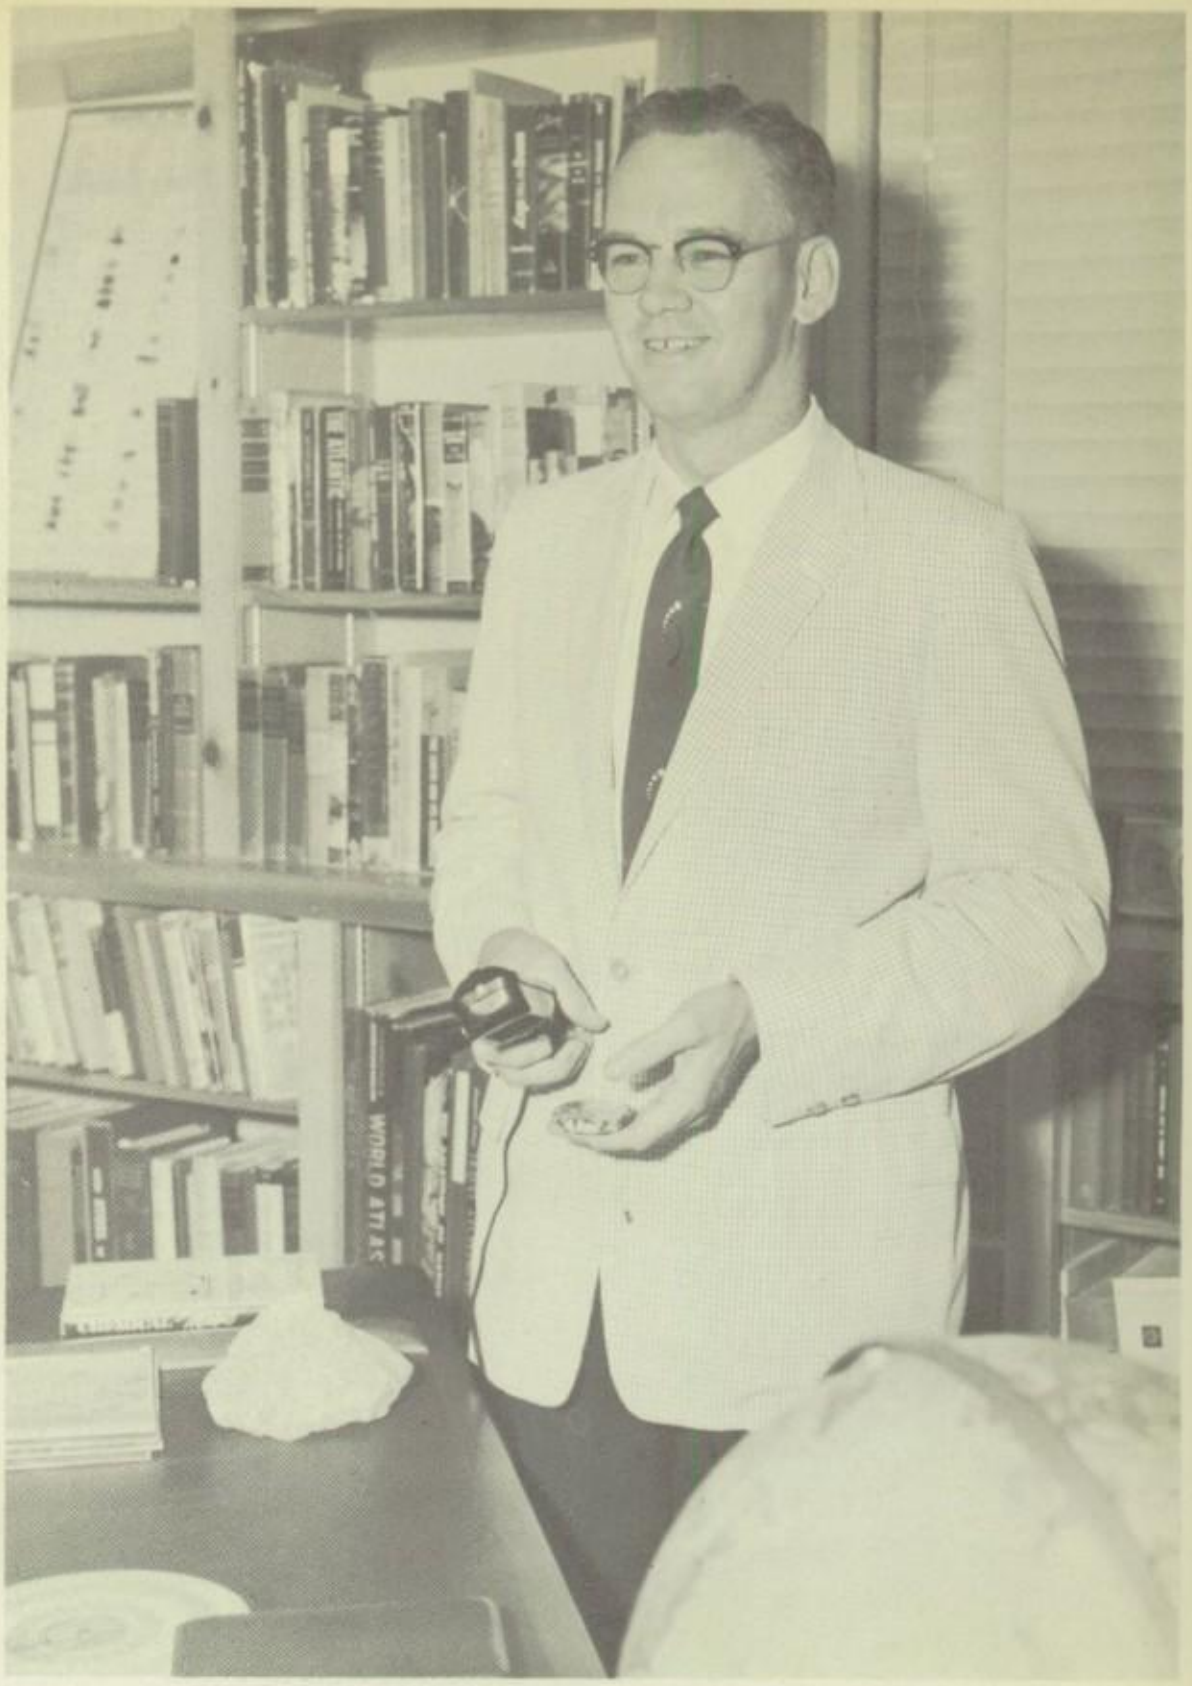
That "He is faithful that promised," Heb. 10:23, and that "there hath not failed one word of all His good promise," I Kings 8:56, is abundantly evident in the beautiful two-hundred-acre campus with its lovely and comfortable dormitories, well-equipped classrooms, library, studio, recreational center, and auditorium.

The glory of God is shown in the physical beauty of the campus, for the lovely formal gardens and lawns, the gorgeous spreading shade trees, the graceful palms and exotic semi-tropic plants and flowers, and the flourishing and healthful citrus groves all clearly reveal His handiwork. The clear, placid waters of Lake Margaret mirror the beauties of the Florida sky, and afford refreshing water sports – swimming, boating, watercycling, sailing – or skimming along behind the boats on the water skis, aquaplane, or water toboggan.

But above the sheer enjoyment of the beauty of the physical aspects of the school is the deep joy of seeing the work of God in the lives of the young people as they are yielded to Him and more and more "conformed to the image of Christ," and filled with the constraining love to win others to Him. "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them." Ephesians 2:10. What greater evidence of the power and blessing of God than in lives yielded to Him and used for His glory! This was the goal of the "pattern on the mount" given to the founders of the Academy – precious trophies to lay at the feet of the Master, an eternal reality even now to Dr. DuBose, who entered the presence of the Lord on December 15, 1959, and the spiritual vision and motivation of those who remain to continue the work, with the pattern unchanged, "For the Glory of God."

Mrs. Pierre Wilds DuBose, Sr.

CHEMISTRY deals with the composition of matter, along with its characteristics and chemical changes. As an outgrowth of study and experiment, the student comes to understand more fully the tremendous significance of the place of chemistry in the twentieth century. But of far deeper significance is the student's recognition of the infinite power of God, the Creator, as expressed in Psalm 8:3, 4, "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained; what is man, that Thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that Thou visitest him?"



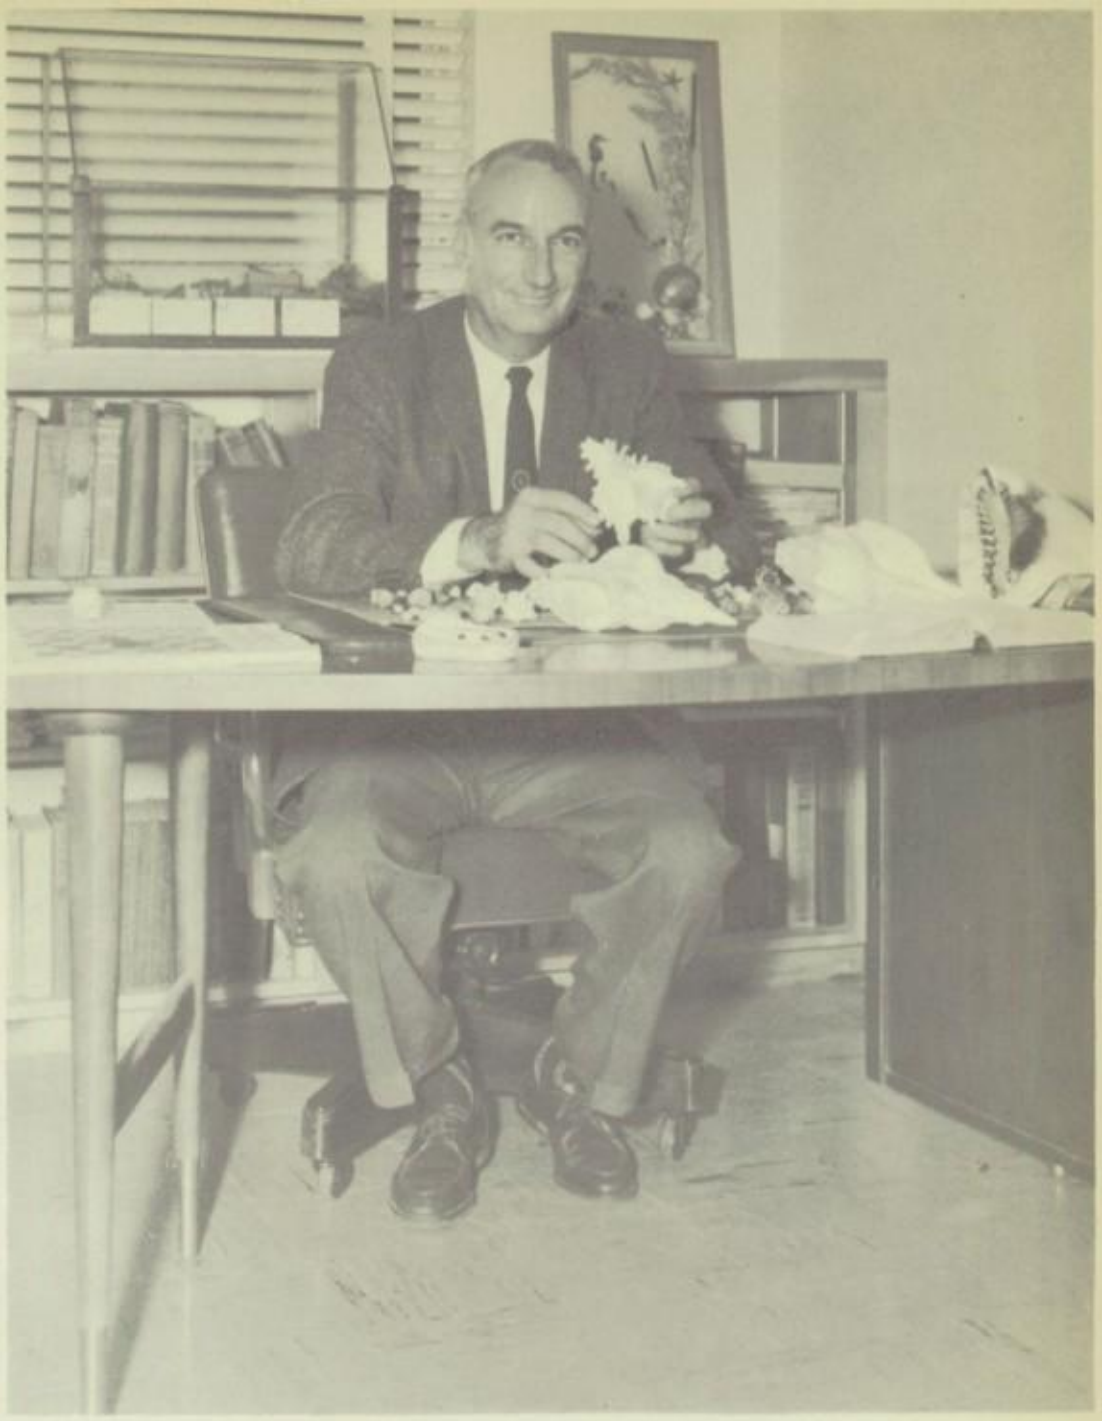
Mr. James Henderson Cole, B.S., M.S.

PHYSIOGRAPHY, an all-inclusive study of man's physical environment, combines a survey of meteorology, mineralogy, oceanography, geology, and typography. Through the use of charts and maps, the student can visualize more clearly the earth's strata and the processes at work in God's creation. Pupils in the physiography class are encouraged to do further research as they are intrigued by the fascinating examples of rocks and minerals on display in the new science classroom.

MECHANICAL DRAWING not only teaches the students the fundamentals of engineering, but also develops preciseness, manual dexterity, and a mastery of form and proportion. In addition to the required exercises, the students are given opportunities to do examples of creative designing.

BIOLOGY, the science which reveals the miracle of life, correlates the facts of the textbook with the vivid examples of God's creation on the spacious Academy campus. The display cases in the new science classroom hold collections which typify those made by students on class observation walks or by students who have accumulated specimens through individual research. All the classroom study turns the students' attention to the everlasting truth that ". . . by Him were all things created that are in the heaven, and that are in earth . . ." Colossians 1:16a.

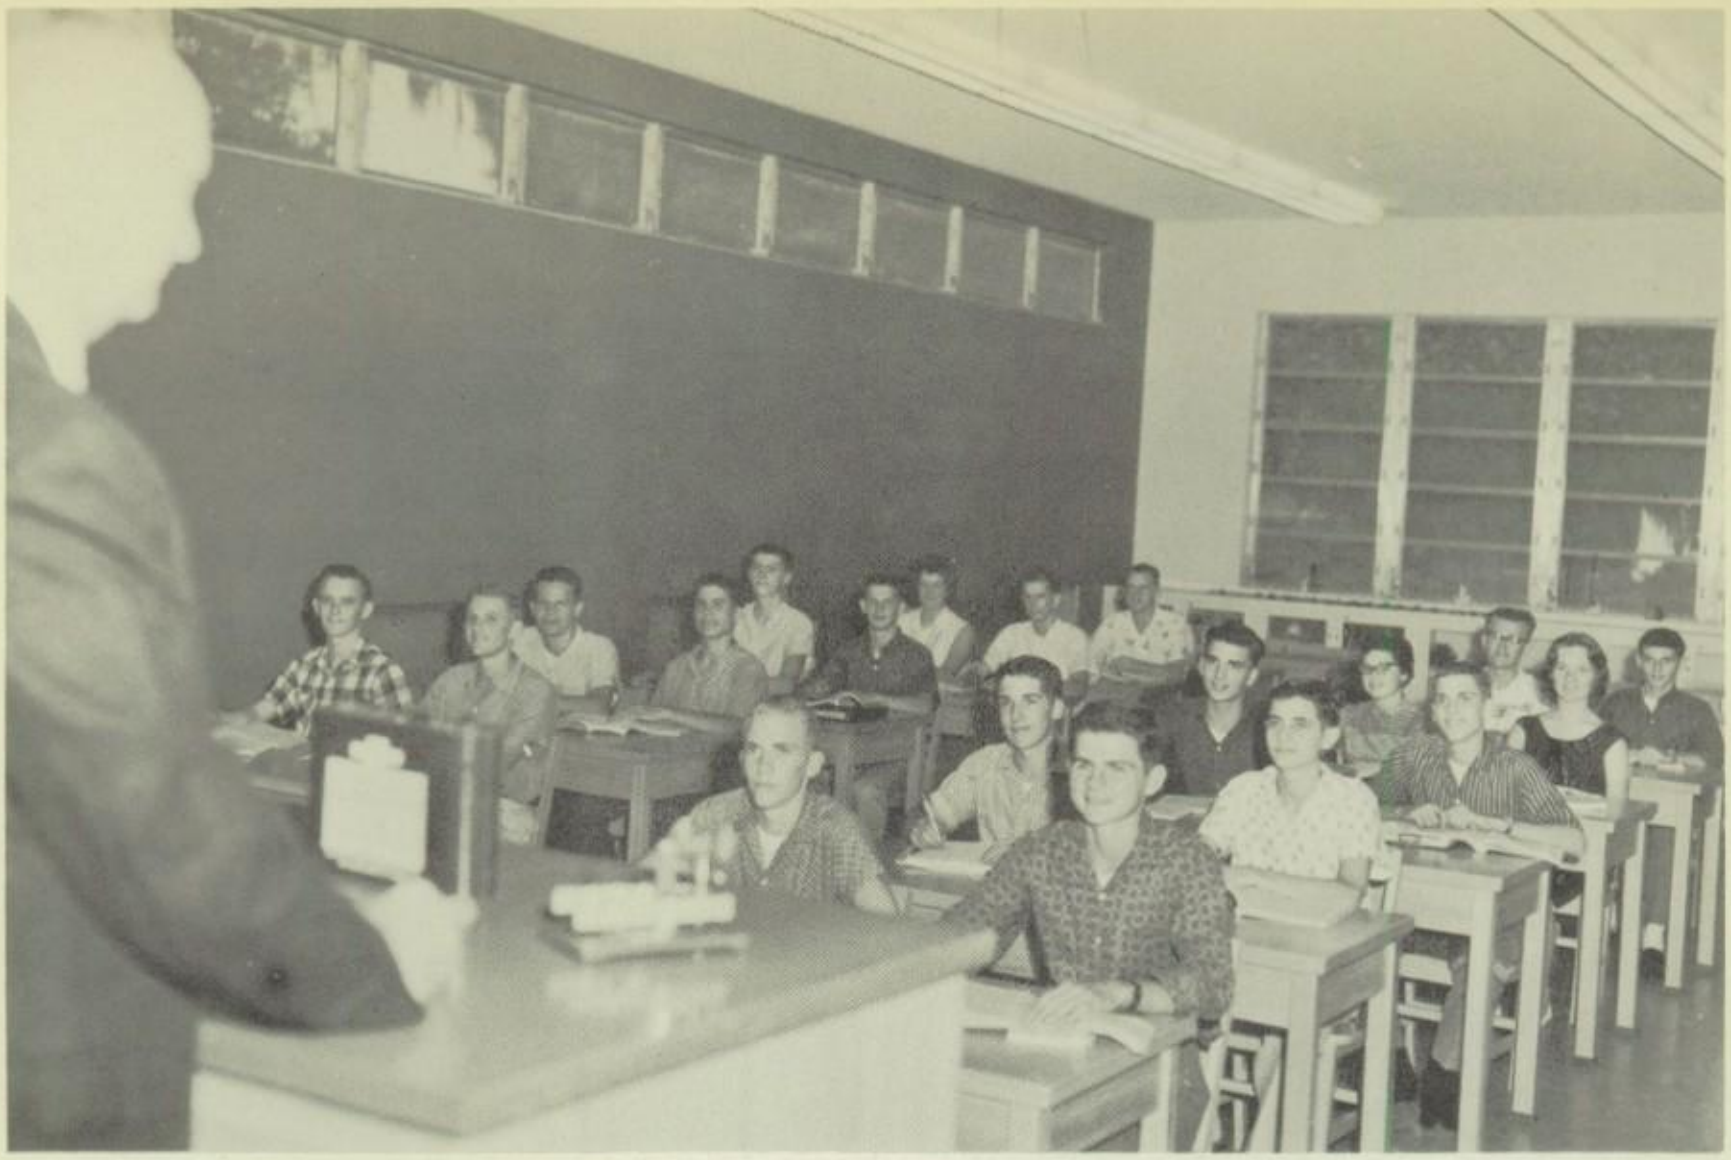
Mr. Richard Drew Wolcott, Jr., B.S., M.S.



Mr. Alfred E. Glatfelter, B.S., M.S.

PHYSICS offers the basic principles by which electricity, light, heat, and atomic power are put to practical use. Through the use of the modern equipment in the new science building, the students learn through supervised laboratory experiments to apply the laws of physics.

GENERAL SCIENCE, a foundation course for scientific studies, demonstrates how scientific principles are applied to everyday uses and prepares the freshman student for further study in more technical courses in science.



The physics students listen attentively as Mr. Glatfelter explains the functioning of an electric motor. The physics class meets in the well-equipped Ellis Allen, Jr. laboratory-classroom.

Mr. Wolcott shows a diagram of circuit electricity to the members of the general science class.

A class in world history studies the boundaries of the Napoleonic empire with Miss Lawrence.

WORLD HISTORY portrays the panorama of the past by showing the beginnings of civilization and the intriguing history of mankind down through the centuries. As the student studies the social, political, and economic development of the nations, he remembers that God has said through His prophet, Isaiah, that "All nations before Him are as nothing . . ." Isaiah 40:17a.

WORLD GEOGRAPHY, an elective course, is designed to build upon the regional geography which the pupils studied before entering secondary school. This course not only presents the physical features of the world, but also shows how the economic and cultural life of the races of the world are related to the climate and terrain of their environment.

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT, a course which prepares young people for intelligent activity as an American citizen, deals with the proceedings and functions of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of the national government. Individual reports and class discussions help the students to interpret the current problems which face our American democracy.

UNITED STATES HISTORY presents a graphic picture of our country's development. Historical perspective is gained in this required course as the student learns of the past events in America's progress. In an era of increasing world-consciousness, the student becomes keenly aware of the responsibilities, privileges, and opportunities which are his heritage in America.

Miss Dorothy E. Hill, B.A., M.A.

SPEECH, a vital necessity for each student preparing for a useful life of service in any field, is an exceedingly practical course which is required for graduation at the Academy. The goal of the Speech Department is to train the students to speak effectively in every type of situation in order that the particular purpose of the speech will be accomplished.

In order to put textbook knowledge into practical use, students take part in literary society programs and class activities on the campus, and in special programs presented in near-by towns. There are also opportunities to participate in Sunday vesper services; and members of the speech classes give choral readings taken from Scripture for the Thanksgiving banquet, the Christmas programs, and the Easter Cantata. The annual declamatory contest includes the entire student body, while junior and senior teams compete in the annual junior-senior debate. The students memorize many Bible verses, and through hiding God's Word in their hearts, they are brought closer to the Lord of the Book and come to use the Word as a powerful two-edged sword in convincing men of their need of a Savior; for the ultimate objective of the Speech Department at the Academy is that each student may be prepared to proclaim the Gospel in such a way that men and women may be turned to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mrs. Richard Drew Wolcott, Jr., B.A.

Some of the junior speech class learn practical pointers for effective speaking.

ENGLISH, the basic course so indispensable for successful study in college, is required for four years at Hampden DuBose Academy. Grammar and spelling form an integral part of each year's English course, while vocabulary study and composition are taught each year according to the grade level of the student. In the freshman and sophomore years, the literature course includes the writings of both English and American authors. The junior class, concentrating upon the writings of American authors, comes to see the effect of the historical background upon the author as revealed in his writings. The senior class learns to evaluate the literary qualities of the outstanding English authors as they further explore the rich fields of the literary masterpieces. In each English class the reading of parallel books, chosen according to individual interest, adds a worthwhile supplement to the textbook material. All the varied features of the English classes combine to give the students a thorough training which will be invaluable to them in the future, both in academic assignments in college and in their life work.

CREATIVE WRITING offers extensive training in advanced writing techniques as the pupil writes illustrative papers in the fields of description, narration, argument, and exposition. Special emphasis is placed upon vocabulary development, which is based upon a study of word origins and derivations.

Miss Evelyn A. Stone, Ph.B.

BIBLE, the foundation course for all teaching at the Academy, is taught as the infallible Word of God, "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." II Peter 1:21. In the midst of the changing circumstances in the national scene and world outlook, the Word of God stands as an unchanging bulwark. To this source of strength and guidance come the faculty and students of the Academy as they feed upon the Word in private devotions, group prayers (by dormitory or by classes), chapel and vesper services, the fall evangelistic meetings, and the spring Bible Conference. In "educating for eternity," the classroom subjects are studied with reference to the teachings of the Bible, and each class period is committed to the Lord in the opening devotional period.

Bible is studied as a subject by each student at the Academy. The freshmen and sophomores study the Pentateuch and the Gospels in alternate years, while the juniors and seniors study Daniel and Acts.

Each student is encouraged to go to the Word of God for himself to receive the message of the Lord, which is revealed in a Spirit-filled life. "For all Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works," II Timothy 3:16, 17.

Miss Margaret E. Anderson, B.A.

Students examine curios from the Holy Land which give a more intimate glimpse of the land where Jesus lived.

FRENCH introduces the student to the contributions made by the French people in many diversified fields of culture. Notebooks and map studies supplement the textbook material, and the class periods are made more vital through oral recitation in French, which includes singing hymns, repeating Scripture verses, and telling folk tales. The student comes to recognize that a knowledge of French is a valuable asset, for this language is next to English in its wide usage among the nations of the world.

TYPING, a practical elective which is often chosen by students at the Academy, trains the student to type various kinds of business forms and shows him how to prepare manuscript material. As the student learns to type neatly and accurately, he is being fitted for greater efficiency as a college student, and he is being prepared to fulfil more capably the responsibilities of his future life work.

Miss Ruth E. Clement, B.A.

The French II class reviews the conjugation of verbs.

The Spanish II class examines a painted tapestry, prepared as a student project.

SPANISH, the language which serves as a connecting link with the countries to the south of the United States, opens the gateway to a fuller appreciation of the far-reaching scope of our heritage from Spanish-speaking countries, both in the Old World and in the New World. Spanish is spoken on the campus by missionary students from Spanish-speaking countries, and thus the students who are learning the language are encouraged to use their class vocabulary in a practical way.

LATIN, the language which is a part of our heritage from Roman culture, gives to the student a background knowledge of words which are important today because of their English derivations. Therefore, emphasis is placed upon the Latin prefixes, suffixes, roots, phrases, and quotations which have vitally enriched the English language. As the textbook vividly describes Roman life, the class becomes more aware of the lasting effects of the ancient civilization of Rome.

Miss Fay G. Ertner, A.B., M.A.

ALGEBRA, a basic course in high school mathematics, serves as a tool in training the student to reason with precision. The study of the exactness of algebraic equations leads the student to see the perfect order of God's creation.

ALGEBRA II includes more advanced study which is preparatory for further courses in mathematics.

GEOMETRY trains the student to think through problems in an orderly manner and then present a logical proof. Studying the exact laws in mathematics trains a young person to think clearly, thereby enabling him to put forth more concentrated effort in other branches of education.

SOLID GEOMETRY AND TRIGONOMETRY are offered, in addition to plane geometry, to those who wish a fuller preparation for college mathematics.

Mrs. Alfred E. Glatfelter, B.S.

Mrs. Glatfelter instructs some of the Algebra I class concerning the fundamental operations with monomials and polynomials.

Thanksgiving Day is a day of traditional athletic games climaxed by the banquet in the evening. Around the festive banquet tables, gay with colorful bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, brightened with candlelight, and adorned with overflowing cornucopias of fruit, Puritan men and women, and individualized by original nut cups and program booklets, the Academy family listens with delight to the traditional numbers – "Carve dat Possum" by the boys' octet, "Cousin Jedediah" by the mixed quartet, and "De Thanksgiving Blessin'", given this year by David Green, as well as other sacred music numbers and a choral reading from Scripture by the speech classes. The program is climaxed by testimonies of thanksgiving by the class officers – these testimonies are continued in following vesper services until each student has had opportunity to praise the Lord – and closed with the majestic "Hymn of Thanksgiving."

After the packing is done, then come the last-minute goodbyes.

The bus full of students turns the bend – and summer vacation has begun.

The Sunday evening services which were conducted each semester by the individual classes were a source of inspiration to the entire student body. The class presenting the program and those who listened all received rich blessings as the message of the Lord was proclaimed.

An instrumental trio, composed of Glen Foster, Ricky List, and Ruth Frederick, played a special number for sophomore vespers.

As a closing number for their vesper program, the freshman class sang their testimony in the song, "Singing of His Love."

The senior girls' ensemble sang "Lead Me, O Lord" as a part of the senior vesper program, which was centered in their class verses, Psalm 25:4, 5.

In the junior vespers the speakers gave personal testimonies concerning practical ways to live triumphantly for the Lord during the summer months.

All the members of each class participate in their vesper programs as the musical numbers (instrumental and vocal) and speaking parts center around the theme for the evening. In this way each student at the Academy has the joy of coming to know the Lord better and the privilege of making Him known to others.

"Barn Vesper Services"

Guests hear the Word of God proclaimed as Mr. Leon Sullivan brings a convincing message.

Students talk with guests at conclusion of a "Barn Vesper Service."

Mrs. DuBose and Rev. Pierre Wilds DuBose, Jr. and Academy students greet guests after service.

The "overflow" of the "Barn Vesper Service" crowd must sit in the roadway and on the front porch of Moody Manor, the newly enlarged boys' dormitory, as guests and students listen to the service over an outdoor loudspeaker.

College Groups hold Chapel Services for Academy.

The Women's Glee Club of Wheaton College presents a concert of sacred music for chapel. Faith Sand '56 and Ann McClenny '58 sing in this group.

The Nyack Missionary Crusaders wear costumes which represent mission fields around the world. Included in the group are Genevieve Holton '58, Joel Kowles '59, Roland Bowman '57, and John McKinney '59.

The Men's Glee Club of Moody Bible Institute, which includes Academy graduate, Peter Hammond, presents a sacred concert in the Academy chapel.

Peter Hammond '59 chats with Mr. Cole before boarding bus to continue choir trip.

Representing fifteen different mission fields, the twenty-six missionary students at the Academy this year come from Mexico, Cuba, Costa Rica, Honduras, Haiti, many sections of South America and Africa, Indonesia, Cambodia, Borneo, Philippines, and Europe. The prayers of the missionary parents all around the world rise to the Lord in behalf of the Academy, and the student body and faculty pray for the work of the missionaries as they preach the Gospel in needy places. More than fifty Academy graduates are serving the Lord on foreign mission fields, and many other graduates are now in schools of higher education preparing to go. In "educating for eternity," the Academy presents to the student body the message of the Lord to His children as He opens their eyes to the fields "white unto harvest."

Mr. James Henderson Cole Elected President of Hampden DuBose Academy

In a special service in the Academy Auditorium, the election of Mr. James Henderson Cole as president of Hampden DuBose Academy by the Board of Trustees was anounced in a letter from Dr. Homer Hammontree, Chairman of the Board, and read aloud by Mrs. Pierre W. DuBose, Sr. She then read a selection from Dr. G. Campbell Morgan's Searchlights from the Word concerning Moses and Joshua, so appropriate to the work of Dr. DuBose and the succession of Mr. Cole, a portion of which follows:

"Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan . . ." – Joshua 1:2

"As these words are read, we are reminded of John Wesley's saying: 'God buries His workmen, but carries on His work.' Joshua was called, equipped, appointed to carry the purpose of God a step further; but all he was about to do was made possible by what Moses had already done. The first great leader of the people had completed his task; he had done what God had appointed him to do, but there were things he could not do. He came to the end of his service knowing the greater things yet to be done.

"The second leader was now to take up his task; he also must do what God had appointed, knowing that there were things which he could not have done. He came to the beginning of his service knowing his dependence upon the things already done.

"Thus it ever is with regard to God's enterprises in this world. He is supreme in plan, in purpose, in power. He alone is the One Who worketh continuously, and without cessation, until the work is completed. His instruments are men, and high indeed is the honor of being such. Each will take up a work already begun, and will leave it unfinished. Each is debtor to those who have gone before, and creditor to those who are to follow.

"Therefore it behooves us to be filled with humility and restfulness. We must be humble as we remember that no service we render is wholly ours. The conditions which make it possible have been created by others; and indeed in itself it is part of their work. But we must be restful also. None of us can finish anything. The work we do is part of a larger whole, and when our "twelve hours" have run their course, it will not be completed. God will still continue it, and find other instruments. That is the joy of working together with Him."

This oneness with the Lord and with each other in the work, so characteristic of the Academy, is expressed by Hudson Taylor to his workers, "It is His work, not mine or yours; and yet it is ours – not because we are engaged in it, but because we are His, and one with Him whose work it is."

In accepting and assuming the responsibilities of the leadership of this work with its God-given pattern and spiritual ideals and standards firmly based upon the Word of God, Mr. Cole, together with the entire faculty and staff of the Academy, looks to the Lord for His continued blessing as the pattern continues unchanged, and the same high ideals and standards are maintained.

One of Mr. Cole's first duties as president of the Academy was to conduct the Commencement Exercises for the Class of 1960, and to introduce the speaker, Mr. Jack Wyrtzen.

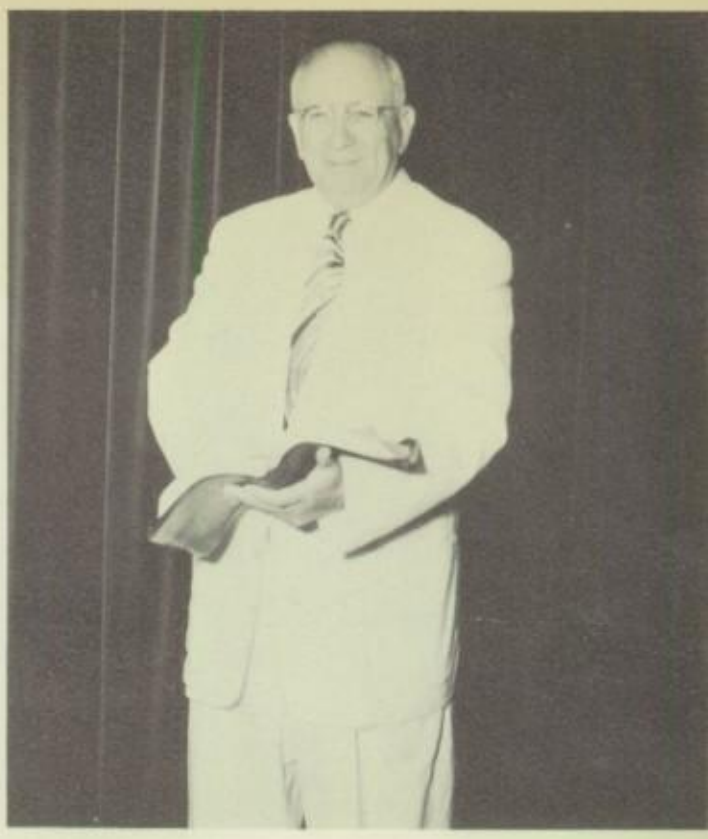
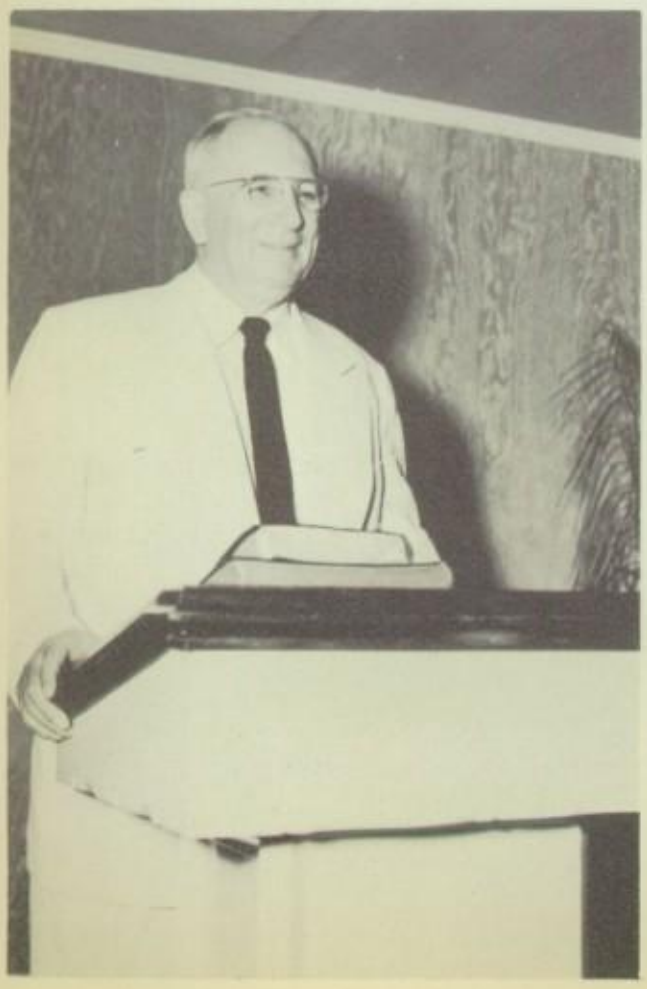
During the brief leave of absence from their mission work in Brazil, the DuBose Jr.'s enjoyed many happy celebrations with their families before we bid them farewell.

Dr. Pierre Wilds DuBose, Founder and President of Hampden DuBose Academy from 1934 to 1960



A faithful executive of the school which God entrusted to his leadership, Dr. DuBose was never happier than when he stood in the pulpit to preach and teach the unsearchable riches of Jesus Christ. His simple answer to every question, "It's all in the Book," expressed his firm conviction of the inerrancy of Scripture and the infallibility of the Word. His oft-recurring theme, ". . . to be conformed to the image of his Son . . . ," showed his prayer for his own life and for those to whom he ministered. He knew no hours, but was always available – and he and Mrs. DuBose always entered into the life of the students, and enjoyed precious times of Christian fellowship with Academy guests.



With his trust ". . . in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy," Dr. DuBose enjoyed life to the fullest, and in each contact with Academy faculty and students, visiting speakers and campus guests he showed the fruit of the Spirit and the fragrance of the indwelling Christ. Trips to many parts of the United States, and special trips to Brazil and to the Holy Land extended the influence of his life far beyond the limits of the Academy – while his consistent prayer life circled the globe.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints." Psalm 116:15

In Memory of Rev. Pierre Wilds DuBose, D.D., 1892-1959,
Founder and President of Hampden DuBose Academy.

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing."

II Timothy 4:7, 8

God's Garden

The big oak stands so proud and tall with lofty arms stretched high,
Relaying God's own message as it points into the sky.

And all around its gnarled trunk, nestled in shy delight,
The flowers form a halo with shimmering rays of light.

A little path leads to the tree; it's all so fresh and clean!
Like a carpet all around, the grass grows emerald green.

But something that's far more precious than earthly beauty here,
Is held within each throbbing heart that finds this place so dear.

So many things come rushing back with memory's soft knock;
And the garden all seems sacred, for here we laid our "Doc."

It's not in hopeless sorrow that we brush away a tear,
For deep within triumphant peace dispels our every fear.

Our Christ once lay within a tomb; the hopeless world seemed gray.
But, oh! What glorious triumph to know He lives today!

To know some day we'll see Him with our loved ones there on high,
To know He lives victorious "that man no more might die."

Oh, Death! "Where is thy sting?" For Christ has triumphed over thee!
Oh, Grave! "Where is thy victory?" Thy conqueror is He!

And when He comes to claim His own, gathered from everywhere,
Our "Doc" will be among the first to meet Him in the air!

Yes, here on earth God's Garden is a precious place we love;
Some day we'll join our own dear "Doc" in God's Garden above.
